BACKGROUND: HR Bulletin #013, FY06, “Pre-appointment Investigations,” provided guidance governing the pre-employment process for employees in regarding suitability. Since the publication of HR Bulletin #013, FY06, the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) issued revised regulations on investigations and suitability determinations and the President issued Executive Orders 13467 and 13488 on the reciprocity of investigations and suitability determinations. This bulletin provides updated guidance incorporating the new regulations and the Executive orders.

PURPOSE: The purpose of this bulletin is to provide current guidance on the pre-employment processes for individuals entering Low, Moderate, and High Risk positions.
- In accordance with Chapter 11.3G.1 of the DOC “Manual of Security Policies and Procedures,” most Low Risk and Moderate positions do not require a pre-appointment check prior to appointment.¹
- High Risk positions and Moderate positions in the information technology (IT) occupations and those with “global access” to an automated information system require favorable pre-appointment checks prior to appointment. (See footnote 1.)
- Pre-appointment investigations are required for Moderate and High Risk positions when the employee must be brought on board before the regular investigation can be completed. (See footnote 1.)
- Servicing Human Resources Offices (SHROs) are to use form SF-85, “Questionnaire for Non-Sensitive Positions,” to request investigations for Low Risk positions.
- SHROs are to use the SF-85P, “Questionnaire for Public Trust Positions” to request investigations for Moderate and High Risk positions since these positions are public trust positions and not sensitive positions.
- SHROs must use the OPM e-QIP system to complete the SF-85 and the SF-85P.
